Split Ends

Remember TRHS in 1990-91?

Roosevelt High School
The 1990-91 year began with controversy in Roughrider Territory

Big Pal Little Pal 1990 was the last year for this event due to the illegal use of alcohol by both the "big and little pals."

Powder-Puff The Administration prohibited the senior girls to play the traditional football game. The game was played on a Sunday. (Seniors 29 - Juniors 6)

Winter Dance The Administration limited the raising of funds with powderpuff and TAG. One buy-out assembly and poinsettia sales barely enabled it to happen.

The incoming Yearbook class of 1990-91 involved themselves in many tedious arguments and disputes as to what the theme of the Yearbook would be. Everything from "When in Bed" to "Do Your Own Theme", an all white book with a crayon for each person to create their own idea came up in the numerous days of conversation. After all the comments and voting ended, our decision was to call the book "Expletive Deleted," the name for what is seen in comic books and other such material as "#&!?," symbolizing some form of profanity. This idea evolved because of the early controversy here at TRHS and lasted about two weeks, when we decided no one liked it and thus the process began again. Finally, the class agreed that the theme would be "SPLIT ENDS."

The first thing that may come to your mind when you hear "Split Ends" is that it's associated with hair or a position in football, but that's not what this year's theme is about. It's about the diversity of Roosevelt students and also about how all of us will eventually and inevitably split apart.

Roosevelt has been classified as a multi-faceted school, a school that is more comfortable and laid-back than most high schools. This seems to once again be true of this year's students. The environment is a care-free one, and no one is treated as if they weren't a respectable part of our student body here at Roosevelt.

"Split Ends" also means that for some of us the time has come and for others it is unfortunately near that we will no longer see each others faces everyday. The friends we have made and grown up with will go their separate ways, and this year will be a distinct memory.

Hopefully, everyone's memory of this year will be a pleasant one, and when we do look back to 1990-91, we will all remember the unforgettable experiences. The process of creating a suitable theme for this year wasn't an easy task, but the final decision "Split Ends" best describes our wide variety and distinguished student body. ■

STUDENT LIFE

Split Ends-- some may ask what does this have to do with Roosevelt's student body? Well, once again there are many different kinds of people who walk the halls at TRHS. Every student is doing different things, going in separate directions, and with many different kinds of people. This year students were more positive, more spirited, and more involved in student activities.

Roosevelt's Homecoming, "Stir It Up", was a smash. Having a D.J. for the first time in awhile really "stirred up" TRHS student body. The senior girls also organized Roosevelt's Winter Dance, "Snowed In." Enough money was raised to make admission free.

This year's student body was definitely worth a look. Turn the pages and see. ■

SPLIT PERSONALITIES ...WORDS FROM THE HERD

Girls Athletics

"ROOSEVELT ADVANCES TO STATE" (Girls Basketball 1989.) "ROOSEVELT VOLLEYBALL TAKES METRO" (Girls Volleyball 1990.) The past four years have proven to be a turning point in athletics, girls athletics that is.

Girls athletics at Roosevlet are becoming a strong plus for the school, however, that could not be concluded by the support it gets. Parents are the team's biggest fans. Moms, dads, grandparents and other relatives try to equal and out yell opponents' bleachers. (And do quite well.) Teachers and faculty attend also, lending support not only on the court, pool, and field but in the classroom as well. But where is the most important support -- the student body?

Girls' sports are badly publicized which leaves some excuse for students. One bulletin announcement stated that the boy's basketball game started at 8:00 p.m. at Roosevelt but failed to mention that the girls' game was before theirs. Rarely can a student recall hearing the announcement of the time and place of a girls' meet or game.

Ask students if they have seen a girls' athletic event and the most common response will be, "Yeah, I,uh,think I saw the last 45 seconds," or "I once went to a volleyball game but saw only the last match." Students seem to have a hard time attending girls' events on time, or at all.

The Cheerleaders role is to lead the school in cheers and to support the teams. They do a wonderful job with boys' football, boy's swimming and boys' basketball but hold no interest for girls' sports. The varsity girls' basketball team had a lot of complaints this season. The cheerleaders have shown up late for their games and have a habit of only supporting the boys' teams.

If Roosevelt wants to continue a growth in girl's athletics there must be something done to change the prejudiced attitude of our student body. The girls' teams are grateful for the few people that do support them all season long and not just at the times when they can get out of school for a game. However, the athletes need the support and recognition that they deserve.■

OPINIONOPINIONOPINIONOPINIONOPINIONOPINIC

The Parking Situation

I was just trying to get to school on time. It was one of those mornings where, due to events beyond my control, I was running late. I prayed as I drove down Center street toward TRHS, but it was too late—even the East parking spaces, the ones by the track, were full. With despair, I gave up all hope of parking legally, and still making it to class on time.

A few unlucky others were in this situation as well and had already taken the spaces in the entrance to the East lot and the drive through at the end of that lot. I took the next closest space, not wanting to chance the lots and street further west, and challenge the Hubbell traffic on the one way. Perhaps it wasn't the best choice to park in the middle of the lot, due to the proximity of the Driver Ed. cars (although I wasn't blocking anyone in) but I was desperate. I made it to Government seconds before the bell.

Later that day in the middle of my sixth hour Chemistry test, I was called to the office to move the car (how did they know it was mine anyway- a plate check?) Under my wind shield wiper was a note threatening in-school-detention if I parked illegally again.

So the parking situation at TRHS is grim. Although there is no simple solution, something needs to be done. Expand the lots toward the south - the extra ten feet in each lot would help immensely. Turn the absurd triangle-shaped lot into a more practical and larger rectanglar lot. Let students park in the otherwise unused spaces at the west end of the teacher's lot. Whatever the answer might be, attention to this problem is imperative. Until then, why not give students, who are making the best out of what they have, a break.■

Senior Girls

When you think of leadership in the world today, most of the positions are held by men. It's a fact that exists, though it doesn't imply that women wouldn't do a better job. In fact when related to leadership positions here at TRHS, you'd think that women should run the world. The simple truth is that if it wasn't for the girls at TRHS, mainly the senior girls, nothing would get done. Imagine Winter Dance if it were up to the senior guys. The Kirkwood would have been an empty, undecorated room, if the guys could even have got that far.

The senior girls take it upon themselves to handle many responsibilities that would otherwise go undone. It's surprising that this doesn't carry over as much after high school is over. Possibly more would be accomplished if the world were run by girls. Well, at least the senior girls at TRHS.■

Big Pal Little Pal

Well, Big Pal-Little Pal has been crossed off Vig's social calendar that schedules, authorizes, and dictates the events TRHS' student body participates in annually. It's been marked off with a big thick red marker. This R-Club sponsored event is gone--another TRHS tradition crossed off.

Traditionally, Big Pal-Little Pal was a formally organized night in which upper-classmen would invite freshmen out on a Friday night. It was organized to the point that each freshmen had a parental permission slip to be a little pal. All freshmen have an orientation to the academic side of TRHS: the tour of the building and discussion of TRHS's attendance policies, grading system, and class scheduling. Big Pal-Little Pal was an orientation to the social side of TRHS. It gave upperclassmen and freshmen a reason to meet somebody new.

The friendship board members of R-Club were in charge of organizing the night and matching a freshman with an upper-classmen. The night began with a potluck, and after eating, the little pals were taken to the football game. The time between the end of the game and the Little Pal's curfew was open ended. It's during this free time that we got into trouble and the controversy began.

Big Pal-Little Pal was cancelled because of problems with alcohol. It is the perception that freshmen drink at this event because of peer pressure; however, the reality is that the majority of little pals just want to drink. This statement is not intended to stereotype all little pals, nor is this an argument trying to convince anyone that drinking associated with Big Pal- Little Pal is something the school and parents should support. Being accused by the police of public intoxication in the parking lot of a high school football game doesn't exactly show responsibility. But the guilt of corruption placed by parents and the school on the upper-classmen should not be for them alone. Peer pressure is not holding the bottle of beer to a freshman's mouth; their own hands are.

Big Pal-Little Pal was a fun tradition while it lasted. Freshmen need an orientation to the social and the academic side of TRHS, without the aspect of alcohol. Hopefully, it will someday be replaced with something comparable. Until then the freshmen will have to find their own ways of getting involved in the social life at TRHS.■

TRHS TRADITION AS IT CHANGES WITH TIME

It's been said that this was a year of controversy, a year of unreasonable decisions, a year in which tradition at TRHS was destroyed. It is true that Big Pal Little Pal was cancelled for next year, that Powderpuff wasn't held this year, and for the first time, freshmen could not go off campus for lunch.

Is it possible that tradition at TRHS will eventually cease to exist or is it that certain traditions become inappropriate with time and change?

There are many traditions which no longer exist. For example, the Pep Club was formed in 1928. Back then, there were 150 members (all girls) who wore blue skirts, white jackets and berets. This group organized cheers and was considered the "spirit group" of TRHS. Pep Club eventually died out during the 1970's. Another former tradition is Rifle Club, which won the state championship in 1940. Other clubs which eventually came to an end are Piano Club and Boxing Club. Daddy-Daughter dinners were a tradition until the early 1980's, but ceased to exist in the 90's for various reasons including divorced parents and "blended" family situations.

TRHS has returned to Odin as our mascot, so why not adopt other lost traditions? The presentation of the "Big Stick" was a custom in which the president of the graduating class presented a club symbolizing leadership and authority to the new senior class president. Since this is "Roosevelt" High School, why not celebrate "Roosevelt Day" which used to be a regular tradition of the school? The day was celebrated on October 27, Theodore Roosevelt's birthday. It consisted of pageants and plays which glorified Theodore Roosevelt. These traditions no longer continue. If today's students don't think we have enough tradition, why not explore an old one?

Yet, it should be said that many past traditions are not diminishing, but are simply transforming into new traditions. For example, TRHS has always been proud of its front lawn. Of course the front lawn is still there, but it has changed immensely. In 1923 it had a pond used for ice-skating and was not surrounded by a freeway or parking lot. Lockers were also different. They were made of wood, until 1955 when a problem with mice developed. The pool, library, and science wing were also new additions to our school at one time. Other changes include the cheerleading squad, which consisted of all males until 1957. From 1957 until now, the cheerleading team has been an all-female team, but this tradition has changed again, with four guys participating on the squad this year.

Is it possible that tradition at TRHS will eventually cease to exist or is it that certain traditions become inappropriate with time and change?

These changes in tradition are due in part to the amount of students' participation and their activity choices. Because of changing times, students are working more and therefore don't have as much time to become involved in school activities. At one point at TRHS, points were given for each activity in which a student participated. A person could only accumulate a designated number of points. This kept any one person from monopolizing school activities, and left more leadership positions open to the majority of the student body.

Although it may seem that tradition at TRHS has greatly diminished the fact is that it does still exist. Many traditions are subtle and often go unnoticed. For example, the school colors and school song have become customs. Sports teams, French Club, Student Council, and Sharks have long been a part of TRHS history.

As old traditions are lost new ones start up and take their place. The Senior Party, Rider Pride and R sweatshirts, Fishing Club, open finals and T.P.'ing are all recent additions to Roosevelt tradition. It's true that many programs, clubs and organizations have been lost, but it's also true that many have remained. The fact is that at TRHS tradition changes with time.

Tantalizing Trivia

1923- The first graduating class at Roosevelt consisted of 17 students.

1935- A soda fountain was added to the cafeteria. For $2.00 a year students could make their own fountain drinks.

1950- A state swim meet was held in the old swimming pool, where the wrestling room is today.

1957- So few boys tried out for cheerleading, that this was the first year for girl cheerleaders.

1962- First year that Roosevelt was a high school and not also a junior high.

1964- No pep assemblies were held because of violence.

Stir It Up! Homecoming 1990

For the first time in a long time, Student Council organized and planned the activities of Homecoming Week. Committees and more committees were established to get the festivities underway.

The traditional T.P. job on the school's front lawn kicked off the week, but was soon followed by other new and exciting activities. One new activity was the decorating of the halls. Each class was assigned a hall which they decorated any way they wanted. Junior Class President Tony Burrell said, "By far we [Juniors] had the best hall; we had a lot of people who dedicated a lot of time."

Spirit Week also added new highlights to Homecoming Week. "We tried to get new ideas to increase school spirit," said Spirit Committee Chair, senior Tracy Woods. One new idea used was the music, ranging from Eric Clapton to New Kids On The Block, that was played over the intercom during passing periods. Woods said, "We tried our best to get a wide range of music." The Pie-throwing Contest was also new this year. Students purchased whipped cream pies for $.50 to throw at teachers. Spirit Week ended with the traditional Blue and White Day.

Members of the Alumni Foundation's Hall of Fame were inducted and the 1990 Homecoming Queen and attendants were named in the third hour assembly on Friday. Michael C. Gartner, president of NBC News; the late Dr. Courtney C. Smith, president of Swarthmore College in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; and Dr. Margaret D. Allen, the first woman to perform a human heart transplant, were the new Hall of Fame inductees. Katie Fanter was named Homecoming Queen. "All my campaigning paid off. No really, I didn't expect it; it was quite an honor," said Fanter. The other Queen nominees were Sara Campbell, Mindy Johnson, Kris McNeil and Jenni Rankin. Underclass attendants were : Syreeta Fields freshman; Kate Wilson, sophomore; and Meaghan Ayers, junior.

The second assembly of the day was the pep assembly held during sixth hour. Students participating in the Mini-float Contest sponsored by The Roundup paraded their floats around the gym. The contest encouraged clubs, organizations and individuals to decorate a float built on a rubber-tired vehicle. The floats could not exceed 150 pounds, could not be longer than six feet or cost more than $50.00. The Kiwanis Club also sponsored the Kiss-a-Pig Contest. The winner, or rather loser, was Vice Principal Richard Vignaroli, who had to kiss the pig during the assembly. Another assembly highlight was the revival of Odin as the 1990 school mascot. The TRHS spirit came alive as Odin arose from a cardboard box in his Viking gear.

Although the football team suffered a disappointing loss to Hoover on Friday, students were ready to dance in the big gym on Saturday night. The theme for the dance was "STIR IT UP" with music by radio station Q102. Dance Committee Co-chair, senior Kyra Ostendorf, felt that this year's homecoming was special because of the DJ, the good turnout and the fact that people stayed to dance.

Student enthusiasm was kept alive by both new and traditional activities. Although Homecoming 1990 is a part of the past - it's not something to be forgotten. ■

THE TRADITIONAL WINTER DANCE CONTINUES WITH:

SNOWED IN

The night started out just like any other winter night, but on December 15th something strange was brewing at the Kirkwood Hotel. A multitude of high school students were rockin' out to songs like "Ice,Ice Baby." No, this was no ordinary December night, it was the annual Winter Dance, "Snowed In."

One of the main attractions of the evening was the announcement of the winners of the "Most Rockin' Couple" award. The candidates this year were Jenni Rankin and Dave King, Wendy Rawson and Michael Phillips, Jessica Jones and Kerry Neff, Alicia Pfander and Mickey Chavannes, and Britney Milligan and Scott Johnson. The award was given to Alicia Pfander and Mickey Chavannes. "Although we were really happy," said Alicia,"I kept wondering how my dad was ever going to live it down at school."

The Winter Dance is traditionally sponsored by the Senior Girls, and the tradition continued this year. The Senior Girls worked hard on raising money for the dance this year. They held two major fundraisers that brought in most of the money. Their poinsettia sales and the sixth hour volleyball game, where the students had to buy a ticket to get out of sixth hour and attend the game, were both a success.

Although the school didn't sponsor a Powder Puff football game this year, juniors and seniors pulled together to make an exciting game."It was an experience that I'll never forget," said junior Allison Wright. The rest of the money was received through generous donations and parental contributions.

On the day of the dance the Senior Girls had raised enough money to pay for almost everything. After receiving all of their bills, the girls were only about $70 short, which is not a large debt compared to past year's. The Senior Girls worked very hard this year to make this a remarkable evening.

SPREE

ANOTHER STATE of MIND

For Roosevelt students to dress up as dice, devils, the Flintstones, and even the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, they obviously had to be in "Another State of Mind."

Spree this year was sponsored by R-Club and the theme was "Another State of Mind." The theme was general enough so that dance-goers could dress as strangely as possible.

Along with the dance came the traditional Spree activities. Seniors Jay Williams and Camia Hoard were selected as Mr. and Ms. Legs. Along with the recognition of having nice legs, comes the embarassment of it. Hoard explains, "It's really embarrasing because when you walk down the hall everybody looks at your legs!"

For Man of the Year, the nominees were Jay Williams, David King, Joe Havighurst, and Mike Casebolt. Again, the winner was Jay Williams. And how did he feel about winning both contests? "I felt really privileged. I was surprised that my peers selected me for Man of the Year and Mr. Legs, but it was great to win them both," said Williams.

The band Platinum played, which made Spree different than other dances this year. They played a large variety of music that was easy to dance to and interacted with dancers up on stage.

Even though some students did come to Spree in "Another State of Mind," it was a dance that many will remember.■

SPRING

Senioritis struck early this year and not only affected the upperclassmen. This 1991 Spring Break came as a much needed vacation to most TRHS students, whether they traveled to the usual Spring Break "hot spots" or just stayed here in the "heartland."

Those students who opted to remain in Des Moines, were greeted with a week of sunshine and relatively warm temperatures. Some used their time productively by working extra hours on their job. In contrast, some students simply took this week to relax, by having cookouts with friends or by visiting a few Des Moines landmarks.

Other TRHS students looked to Spring Break as an opportunity to travel. As in recent years, two popular destinations were South Padre and Colorado ski areas. Still others traveled a little farther. "It was neat to experience a foreign culture," said Casey Green of her trip to Italy.

This week created time for one of the first activities of TRHS's Fishing Club. Members took a road trip, where they spent quality time exploring exciting fishing techniques. A trophy was to be given to the most productive fisherman. Technical Advisor of the club, Rob Schneckloth commented on the outcome of the contest. "The trophy awaits the angler of tomorrow."

Nothing really distinguishes this Spring Break from past years. This will always be the subject of the same places and actions, but everyone will agree that this 1991 Spring Break was greeted with much appreciation and a sigh of relief.

ARTS FAIR '91

On April 19th, a large variety of Roosevelt students displayed their talents in the arts and showed that art is global.

The Roosevelt Arts Fair is a chance for art, drama, music, and ESL students to display their talents at individual stations throughout the school. The different displays consisted of jewelry, paintings, pottery, photography, and ethnic crafts.

Aside from the art displays, there was a mixture of entertainment. Several guitar players, vocal musicians, and the Swing Choir performed throughout the day. The Choral reading group and drama students also performed.

TRHS student always seem to enjoy the annual Arts Fair. "I think there was a good turnout of people and a lot of students put in good effort to make this year's Arts Fair a big success," said junior Jennifer Severson.

DISSECTION:

No guts, no grade

There is an old saying, that coaches and teachers often use, "no guts, no glory." Senior Advanced Biology teacher Jack Koch has modified the saying just a little bit. His classes are expected to dissect cats and frogs throughout the year, therefore coming up with a new saying,"no guts, no grade." There are 55 students currently enrolled in this class, and they are all expected to perform the dissection.

Koch's classes have been dissecting cats for about 20 years. The Senior Advanced Biology class is a very difficult class that requires many hours of studying. The class is basically designed for college bound students with an interest in pre-med, pharmaceuticals, nursing, and other science-related fields. Roosevelt is the only school in the Des Moines School District that has been involved in cat dissection for a long time. Although no other school has used the cats, other schools, such as Hoover, have been using fetal pigs.

Cats are used, as opposed to other animals, for many important reasons. The first reason is the expenses. Cats are fairly inexpensive and are easy to come by. Also, their internal structure is similar to humans, which makes the dissection more beneficial to the students.

There have been some mixed feelings among Roosevelt students, over killing the cats only for the purpose of class dissection. The cats mainly come from big cities, where stray cats are abundant. Some companies have what are called "kitty farms", where cats are raised specifically for experimentation. The cats are raised on these farms, killed in gas chambers, and are sent to schools and universities around the country.

Aside from the cat dissection, the students also dissect frogs during the first semester. The students kill the frogs themselves and then perform the dissection. There is some reluctance with some of the students to actually kill the frogs, but most students know what to expect when they sign up for the class. If a student has a real problem killing their frog, Koch will assist them. "I didn't mind cutting up something that was already dead, but when it is still warm, kicking, and breathing, it makes it a lot more difficult," said senior Lisa Anderson.

Throughout the years, students have had many different reactions to the Senior Advanced Biology class, but they keep coming back.The students seem to enjoy the experience that they get in this class, as well as the instructor who teaches it.

ORGANIZATIONS

Although the continual appearance of group shots may be monotonous throughout this section, they serve an important purpose. Organizations provide a balance in students' lives. School shouldn't be all books, homework and finals.

TRHS always has something new to offer. Clubs new to Roosevelt are S.E.A. Club, Fishing Club and Rho Phi Rho. All it takes to form a new club/organization at Roosevelt is a purpose, a constitution, and an approval by Dr. Conley. How involved a student becomes in extra curricular activities depends on the individual.

At TRHS there are extreme levels of involvement. Some students contribute nothing and others participate in everything. It is not uncommon to find the same students planning and organizing many school functions. Without the time and effort of these students, annual traditional events at Roosevelt might not exist. The problem is that when one person takes on too many responsibities they tend to run out of time and the quality of the job suffers. Roosevelt needs more involvement from more people.

Organizations are extra curricular activities. These activies provide a balance between studying and fun. Get involved! ■

R-CLUB

Once again the traditional R-Club at Roosevelt had another successful year. Each year in the fall R-Club sponsors a fun activity called Big pal Little pal, where upperclassmen take out the freshmen to a potluck and a football game. Unfortunately, this year due to a little craziness and a few drinkers there will no longer be a Big pal Little pal. They also held the annual Crazy Cake Contest,where cakes are baked and decorated for the Homecoming game. Next came the Mr. and Ms. Legs Contest, in which eight young ladies and gentlemen (one from each grade) were nominated for best legs. In the spring R-Club sponsors the dance: Spree. This year's Spree theme was "Another State of Mind." People were dressed as Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, The Flintstones, fuzzy dice, and rocked out to the music of Taz Band. Along with Spree comes Man of the Year, where the most academic, athletic, cool studs are elected. This year's candidates were David King, Jay Williams, Michael Casebolt, and Joe Havighurst. The 1991 Man of the Year, Jay Williams was crowned at the dance. R-Club's 1991 officers were President- Carey Schissel, Vice-President- Kathleen Murphy, Secretary- Carrie Lehman, and Treasurer- Sara Campbell. ■

E SI PHI RHO PHI RHO

A new group at Roosevelt raised a lot of controversy this year. The co-organizations of Rho Phi Rho and E Si Phi, consisting of Afro-American students, brought up the question of what is considered a sorority and fraternity. The Greek organization names alone give the impression of this.

Under Iowa law, sororities and fraternities in public schools are illegal unless they "are sanctioned by the directors of such schools." The organizations' fight with administration for recognition as school sponsored proved unsuccessful throughout the year.

The main objection of the principal was the in-school initiation procedures, which included attire, lunch table seating, stepping, chanting, and whatever Big Brothers and Sisters demanded of the Pee-Wee's and Jic's. The administration also requested a constitution, by-laws, and a formal statement of the group's purpose.

The group did create offices and filled each with a strong leader. E Si Phi: President, Jay Williams; Vice president, Cory Williams; Secretary, Tony Rankins; Treasurer, Ishmael Hart; Sergeant at Arms, Aundra Hines. Rho Phi Rho: President, Tracy Hill; Vice president, Arica Wright; Secretary, Stephanie McClain; Treasurer, Kristy Matthews. The problem that arose in the group was the writing of the constitution and by-laws due to some disagreement between group officials. Whereas E Si Phi President Jay Williams considers the group more or less a faternity and sorority due to the southern origin of the idea, Rho Phi Rho President Tracy Hill said, "First of all don't call us a sorority/fraternity or whatever, we are an organization." One thing both halves of the group agree on is their purposes: to bring the Afro-American people together, to offer an alternative to gang membership, and to serve the community.

The group also considered combining with the current group at Hoover, but were unable to do this without formal recognition from TRHS administration. However, the Roosevelt and Hoover groups occasionally held combined meetings and held stepping competitions.

Although the group had a gung-ho start, their enthusiasm began to fade particularly during the winter months. Within a couple months the group went from E Si Phi's doing a step-show in Greek Week at Iowa State University to calling meetings with barely any members showing up. But just as nature is reborn in the spring, so were the Rho Phi Rho's and E Si Phi's. The group began working to increase participation and excitement, planning on maintaining the group's strength for the following year.

Culture Club did not get underway this year until second semester. Senior Aundra Hines initiated the restart of Culture Club with advisor Vera Kemp's guidance. As Cory Williams put it, "Aundra's like the spark that got us started."

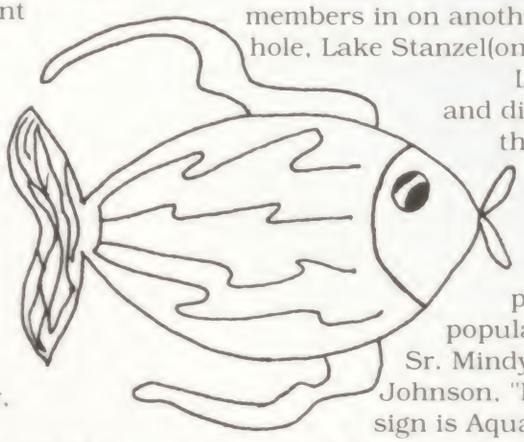

After the group met for the first time, excitement grew. Having meetings every Tuesday after school, the group held serious discussions and debated over racial issues. The major topic of discussion and semester goal for the group was to increase interest in a black history course to be taught as an elective. The hope of the group was to raise enough support from TRHS students, so that the class will begin in the fall of '91.

Another suggestion made for next year was to combine Culture Club into E Si Phi and Rho Phi Rho in order to make a stronger statement of their common purpose. ■

Fishing Club

Fishing Club rose up from the water this year after Rick Pfander was blessed with the honor of sponsor. President Scotty "Rubber Duck"Johnson, Sergeant at Arms Jeff "Captain America" Olson, and Technical Advisor Robby "Bartman" Schneckloth led the group with mottos such as "Happiness is hooking a hawg," and "If it isn't a lunker, throw it back!"

This rowdy group had a "...retreat/party planned for Scott's farm." This favorite fishing spot , along with the usual Greenwood and Saylorville, was one of the few spots that club officials felt they could "let out."

One of the club's finest role models, Worth Ramsey the One Toothed Fisherman(God rest his soul) let club members in on another great fishing hole, Lake Stanzel(only on Sundays). Ladies and dirty jokes were the best boat entertainment as club applications proved. Among popular lines were: Sr. Mindy "Reel 'em in" Johnson, "My astrological sign is Aquarius, I was born to fish." Sr. Chad "Kountry Mile" Johnson has a ritual to coax lunkers into his casting range, "I sing the blues and sprinkle Kool-Aid on the water." However, there are some fishermen like Sr. Mitch "Tuna" Brown, feel simply wonderful whenever I'm fishing." Sr. Benny "The Jig" Rottler qualified for the club because, "I can tell the difference between a fish and a can of beer."■

This year Anthroplogy Club was slow in getting started, but by the end of the year the small yet enthusiastic group made headway.

There was interest in having a mask-making workshop, but due to lack of funds this never came together. However, the group attended a lecture in Iowa City on Charles Darwin and evolution in the Galapagos Islands. Along with their main outing to Iowa City the group planned several lunches and dinners. These were the times the group really had a chance to get to know each other and their sponsor, Dr. Kent Frank, outside the classroom.

"I think we're finally getting some activities together," President Kris McNeil comments.■ -Carrie Lehman

The 1990/91 Design club didn't start off too active, because of lack of members and enthusiasm. But, when Arts Fair came around they developed as a cooperative commitee for Arts Fair.

The main task for Design club is to organize Arts Fair. The Arts Fair gives the club the opportunity to be creative and pull together as a team. "One of the things I find neat about it, is that some of the students that don't excel in other areas excel in Art. It's a different kind of excellence," said Design Clubs sponsor Susan Lewis.

Even if the club didn't start off to an active start, the Design club made Arts Fair a success with their creativity and talent.■

NEWSPAPER

The Roundup Staff of 1990-91 proved to overcome challenges such as size and personality conflicts.

With sixteen people, this year's fall staff was among the smallest in recent years. "As the semester ended I was pleased that the staff was able to rally and do good work," said faculty adviser Jim Tredway of the fall staff. When second semester started, the staff increased to twenty-seven people, which enabled the staff to produce more pages with better quality.

Another challenge that occurred was the differences in personalities. "This staff was not as liberal as staffs in the past. There was a combination of conservative and liberal writers which caused some problems, but healthy tension. It affected our ability to publish editorials, because the editorial board didn't agree on what should be said," Tredway explained.

This year's newspaper made some changes. The Roundup made a complete transition to PageMaker, a desktop publishing program, which made it easier to design the newspaper.

Also, the photography this year improved. "This year's photography is probably the best we've had since I've been here, especially the sports photography by Matt McCarroll," Tredway said.

A big accomplishment for the Roundup this year was receiving the Quill and Scroll Society's Gallup Award for the 1989-90 staff. Only 76 high school papers in the country were given the award.■

This year's Yearbook staff had a case of arguments determining the title. Finally, due to the differences between students and the ends of their lives, the title "Split Ends" was decided upon.

Senior Tom Gardner, editor-in-chief of the 1990-91 yearbook, realized, "I should've used my editorial powers to solve the many arguments and name the yearbook 'Comfortably Numb,'" which was his personal favorite. However, many staff members agreed as Carrie Lehman felt, "Thank God he didn't!"

Soon enough the deadlines were shuffling in and the spreads and layouts were mailed out.

"The photography is the best we've had since I've been doing this job," said Jim Tredway, adviser of the yearbook production.

This year's ratio between male and female staff members gradually improved; the male photographers were a huge addition to the making of the 1990-91 yearbook, "Split Ends." ■ - by Katina Parrish

STUDENT COUNCIL

This year Student Council was reborn under a new sponsor, Carolyn Christiansen. With her support and encouragement, the Roosevelt student body shocked administration with their capabilities and leadership strength. Her faith in the students has given them confidence in themselves, creating changes in many areas. "Student Council is more organized this year and has done a lot more. There's more communication with the group, rather than just the officers," junior Allison Wright commented on the refined Student Council.

These changes have been largely due to Christiansen's guidance, particularily in the meetings. She has maintained Student Council as a democracy representing the student body as a whole, maintaining her role as sponsor. As write-in president Joe Parrish put it, "She's tough, but very good. We couldn't have done half the stuff without her." Christiansen has totally emphasized the "we" part of Student Council, which acts as a mediator between the students and administration.

However, Christiansen does not take full credit for the changes in Student Council this year. She is "totally convinced that there can be a viable Student Council at Roosevelt, however it does take a strong commitment on both the part of students and adults." Both sponsor and president have been extremely pleased with the commitment, responsibility, and leadership of members and officers. The efforts made within the group have redeemed Roosevelt's confidence in themselves and status in the community.

Throughout the year Student Council has made changes in response to the growing needs of the student body. Starting the year out, Student Council extended their executive board with presidents and vice presidents for the underclasses, which were elected by respective class members. Later in September, they held a "Hello Dance" for all students with the intent of helping bring the school together as a whole. Next, tradition was altered as Homecoming was hosted by a disc jockey from Q-102 rather than a band, starting a new trend at Roosevelt. In addition to the regular Homecoming activities, the new school mascot, Odin, made his first appearance at the Homecoming pep assembly. Student Council helped the school to elect Odin as mascot and arranged for his costume with money the 1990 graduating class left the school for this purpose. During the remainder of the first semester, Student Council was active in numerous pep assemblies along with organizing the Academic Letter Ceremony, and sponsoring a total of eleven students to represent Roosevelt at the Governor's Youth Conference and the Martin Luther King, Jr. Educational Forum.

"I think that we too often judge students by the way they usually behave rather than how they could behave; what they could accomplish!"
-Carolyn Christiansen

Second semester proved to be just as successful for the group. In January, Student Council organized a school fundraiser for Heart Connection of Iowa, which provides support for children with cancer and families of cancer victims. The project consisted of students and teachers donating money in their fourth hour classes and a Bands Jam, in which Roosevelt exercised their talents after a home basketball game against Ames. On January 29, President Joe Parrish proudly presented a Heart Connection representative with a outstanding check of $2450.06 from the Roosevelt student body and faculty. The school year ended with plans for making sure Central Campus students are represented, working towards extending library hours, putting up a TRHS sign close to Polk Blvd., and continuing the previous year's Farewell to Seniors Assembly and Slideshow as a new school tradition.

"I think that we too often judge students by the way they usually behave rather than how they could behave; what they could accomplish," says Christiansen. That certainly proved true during the 1990-91 school year. Student Council accomplished far more than preceding years have, demonstrating the potential that Roosevelt students have.

The students elected to be in National Honor Society must meet special requirements, including an academic achievement of 3.5, demonstrate service and leadership, and have a history of being able to give to others.

The reason for this club is mainly to "recognize those students not only in their academic achievements but their well-roundedness of gifts and skills to share with the community," explained Charlene Hendryx, the NHS sponsor and TRHS vice-principal. This year the club helped tutor other students and was also involved in the Annual Blood Drive. This year's officers included, President- senior Ryan Devine, Vice-President- senior Kris McNeil, Secretary- senior Elise Devore, and Treasurer- senior Kate Branson. ■

The 1990-91 Spanish Club was off to a slow start, but soon began to accomplish its goals. This year's club consisted of approximately fourteen members. The 90-91 officers were President- junior Francis Engler, Vice-President- junior Megan Perkins, Secretary- junior Liz Cook, Treasurer-junior Nick Zoss. Much of first semester the club did very little. They had a fundraiser at Parent-Teachers Conferences and attended a Spanish dinner at Chi Chi's. Second semester the club took part in Language Awareness Week which was the first week in March. That included all language clubs at TRHS. They also had a progressive dinner. This summer some members of Spanish Club went on a trip to Mexico in June. It was not only a fun vacation but a learning experience as well. Thirteen students attended, and stayed with host families. The students hoped to learn more about the Spanish culture, as well as to teach the American culture. ■

The Key Club is a service organization which provides help to the communities in Iowa. There are also district levels and national levels. This year's club consisted of fifteen members. The 1990-91 officers were President- sophomore Sara Wood, Vice-President- junior Stefanie Geisler, Secretary- junior Emily Fischer, and Treasurer- senior Jennifer Friedrich. This year the club helped at a Halloween party for the Association for Retarded Citizens. They also sponsored the Kiss a Pig contest at the Homecoming pep assembly. The club also cooked dinner for the Salvation Army.

Second semester they baked cookies on Valentine's Day for elderly people unable to get out of their homes. They also read books to terminally ill children in the hospital. These are only a few projects that the club took part in. Key club is sponsored by Coby Koester, who is a member of Kiwanis, an adult level of Key Club. Key Club certainly accomplished a lot and in the future they hope to continue helping out communities in Iowa. ■

This year's debate team finished very well overall with approximately forty members. This year the club has expanded a lot. They not only added a wider variety of events, but this year also got a new coach. After last year's coach Paul Klousia left, Kate Seeley took over. "The team this year is mainly very young, but has much talent," Seeley said.

Debate consists of four events: policy debate, Lincoln-Douglas debate, individual speaking, and a Mock Trial team. Policy debate is probably the biggest part of Forensics. It consists of teams of two which are given one topic at the beginning of the year and research on it throughout the year. Senior Ryan Devine and junior Tyson Smith were one of top teams at Roosevelt. They won first at Bettendorf tournament and were second at Lincoln. The Forensics team spent eighteen weekends out of town, not only in Iowa, but throughout the midwest. ■

The 1990-91 Thespian Club had another very successful year at Roosevelt. To become a Thespian you must earn points and be a part of three plays at TRHS. In November members of the club performed in the fall play The Nerd . This year the group was privileged to hold The Iowa State Thespian Festivial at Roosevelt, where members of other thespian groups performed. In the spring members of Thespians took part in the play*The Wiz.* put on by the music and drama departments rather than just drama. The 1990-91 thespian officers were President-senior Emily Moren ,Vice-President junior Katie Pundzak, Secretary-senior Alicia Pfander, and Clerk/ Treasurer senior Lisa Thompson. ■ -Becky Roberts

In the second weekend of November, on the 9th and 10th, the Roosevelt Drama Club presented the 1990 fall play, The Nerd , to an audience of 600. The play revolves around Willum, a talented architect. It's Willum's birthday and his girlfriend, Tansy, is leaving for a news casting job in Washington D.C. within the week. During Willum's birthday party, Rick Steadman, who saved Willum's life in Vietnam, shows up on a surprise visit.

Rick, the nerd, is an annoyance to Willum's conservative, professional life and his relationship with Tansy. Willum finally attempts to make Rick feel unwanted and uncomfortable by enforcing strange "traditions" in daily living. When this is not successful, Willum is forced to kick Rick out of his house. Axel, Willum's best friend, then reveals Rick's true identity as Kemp, who has a job offer for Willum. This job brings Willum closer to Tansy and they "ride off into the sunset", so to speak.

"The most experienced cast and crew worked together in the greatest play I've been in at Roosevelt."
--Erik Hastings

The play was a great success with Thespian members from all across Iowa in the audience. Senior Erik Hastings was awarded a Thespian State Representative position in Iowa, as well as a Certificate of Appreciation for Outstanding Acting. The Certificate for Outstanding Acting was also awarded to senior Brendan Devine. The entire cast superbly portrayed their characters consistently, even to the detail of side actions and facial expressions.

The stage set and props were also outstanding. The set created an inviting, comfortable atmosphere for the audience. Junior Anne Bodenstedt, head of props crew, was awarded with a Certificate of Appreciation for Props.

Marilea David, the drama and Thespian teacher, worked well with an outstanding group of students. The end product was a successful play which exemplified all aspects of drama.■

The WIZ

No one thought we would be done on time, but the cast really put in some long, hard hours to get it done. It was stressful and a lot of people came close to death by my hand, but at the same time it was fun. Weird, huh?" explained sophomore Davida Williams.

The 1991 spring musical, The Wiz, was a combined effort of both the vocal music and drama departments. At times the show came close to not meeting its deadlines, but everything came together and the cast and crew pulled off a rewarding and successful performance. There was an excellent turnout with a large audience, one that Roosevelt had not hosted in a long time.

Head of Costumes and Assistant Director, Lori Glawe, said, "Outstanding production! The Wiz highlighted the talent that we have at Roosevelt, a good positive experience for both upper and lower classmen."

Junior Carol Bunten agreed, "The Wiz introduced many new actors and there was definitely a variety of people."

Some very realistic and artistic ideas for costumes and props were taken from the drama classes. A few costumes were even donated by individual students. Erik Hastings, who was in charge of special effects, said, "The Wiz was a great venture and a good time was had by all."

The Wiz is an African-American version of The Wizard of Oz. It has similar characters and story line, but The Wiz adds soul, inspiration, and laughter. It begins as Dorothy, the main character, is blown away in a tornado and arrives in an imaginary place called Munchkinland. She is told by the Good Witch of the North to take a journey to a city of Oz. There she will find the Wizard, who will grant her a wish back to Kansas. On her way to Oz, Dorothy meets the Scarecrow, the Tinman, and the Lion. After meeting the Wizard, the four characters must kill the Wicked Witch of the West to earn their wishes; a brain for the Scarecrow, a heart for the Tinman, courage for the Lion, and finally for Dorothy, her trip back to Kansas. However, their journey to the west reveals that they had their wishes within themselves.

"It was a very difficult show, but I think that the students really showed what they are capable of doing," said Marilea David of the production and performance.■

SHARKS

Simply Uncivilized

This year's Sharks pageant, Simply Uncivilized, had the usual and some unusual opening night jitters, such as freshman Anne Bannister sprained her ankle right before going out to perform. (Anne was not the only Shark to find themselves face first or butt first on the floor due to water.) Luckily most of the group's problems took place back stage and didn't interfere with the performance.

Fortunately, along with Anne's ankle, the show improved each night it was performed. By Saturday night Anne was back in the water and the Sharks Club delivered a great show to a rowdy audience, consisting mostly of students under a simply uncivilized influence. The receptive audience grew louder and louder throughout the show. By the end of the last act, Kung Fu Fighting performed by senior guys, there were some young gentlemen that could not control their excitement any longer and found themselves in the water with the senior guys and Sharks members.

Simply Uncivilized was a simple success after months of hard work by the club. Tryouts in November started the club rolling on its way to success. The Sharks were able to overcome minor setbacks, such as the pool being out of commission and taking time away from water practice. Pulling together through long hours of teaching and learning the numbers really paid off. The Sharks Club overcame all the setbacks of the season, and put on great performance to Simply Uncivilized songs such as "Hard To Handle", "Wild Thing", and "Crazy Love."

The first two nights of the show, the Sharks Alumni added their talents to the show in a mildly uncivilized number, "The Age of Aquarius." To top off the season Mindy Johnson was presented with the award for Most Outstanding Senior, and Erin Reynolds received the Julie Stone Memorial Award for Most Enthusiastic Shark at the end of Saturday night's show.

Strong leadership was obvious throughout the performance, and all the Sharks put on a civilized show, despite the title.

This year's 1990-91 Concert Choir was outstanding. Increasing in members from last year, this year's choir consisted of approximately sixty members. Senior officers were President-Martha Evans, Vice President,-Julie Poundstone, Secretary-Kellie Sandie,and Treasurer- Jennifer Peterson. Members of Concert Choir were involved in several performances and contests which took hard work and dedication.

Much of the first semester was once again spent preparing for the annual Variety Show in November. A lot of time was also spent working toward All-State auditions in Indianola. Senior Erik Christensen, and sophmore Alisa Buchanan were chosen to participate in the All-State performance held in Ames.

For second semester much of their time was spent on the trip that the choir took May 9-12, in Chicago. The name of the performance was America Sings, a program that helped many homeless families.

This year's choir was definitely one of the largest ever. They have contributed much to not only the school but to the community as well. Concert Choir has put much time and hard dedication into all that they have done this year for all. ■ -Becky Roberts

Chamber Chorale is composed of a talented bunch of singers. Although they have decreased in number from last year, the ten members have contributed much to the community. During the month of December the group was very productive. They performed on several occasions. This year they were asked to perform at the Annual Republican Dinner held at the Salisbury House. They also performed at Younkers, and Mercy West Clinic during Christmas. ■

SWING .....

PREP SWING CHOIR

"I enjoy performing and feel that Prep Swing is good preparation for Swing Choir," said freshman Emily Seldon. Prep Swing is a part of the staircase every young musician must climb to reach the top. It offers individuals, mostly freshmen, a chance to get the feel of a choir.

Prep Swing members learn how to dance and sing on stage, also how to feel more comfortable in front of an audience. Students with little artistic ability in the field of music enter room 348 and leave at the end of the semester feeling like new, mature developed musicians. They achieve their goal of being the best they can be.■

Swing Choir is a bubbly group of outgoing TRHS students. They traveled throughout Iowa performing in retirement homes, elementary and junior high schools. They had the chance to entertain the city of Cedar Rapids and neighboring schools in one of their most successful performances.

Sophomore Paul Holmes said, "Swing Choir has prepared me with proper musical education to excel in my singing career." Swing Choir offers a wonderful experience to become aware of the outside competition of musicians. Also, they can overcome their stage fright.

Expect to see these talented young entertainers in the future.■

FLAGS

The ten TRHS girls, who accent and help beautify the marching band, show much dedication. The flag group got up every morning during the season to be at practice by 7:00 a.m. This year the Flags routine helped the band win a one rating, which is the highest award in that competition. They also performed with the band during half-time at Roosevelt football and basketball games. ■

MARCHING BAND

The 1990-91 Roosevelt High School Marching Band "was the biggest in four years," observed Richard Wolfe, the Marching Band director. "There was a total of sixty-nine students that participated this year." These students found themselves marching at the varsity football home games. However, they were dissappointed to have missed a marching competition because of a conflict with the homecoming game. "I think it's important to compete at least three times a season, but it just didn't work out," recalled Wolfe. Left with two competitions, the band failed to qualify for the first one, but they received a Division I rating at the state contest. The state marching contest, held October 20, drew the marching season to a close. ■

BJAZZ

This group of twenty-one musicians "did well" this year according to Richard Wolfe, the director of the ensemble. The band "placed second or third in each of their three competitions."

Not bad, but some Roosevelt band members felt that the judges were less than impartial, and leaned strongly towards Valley. Though it may not have been fair, band members still enjoyed the competition, and look forward to it next year. The granddaddy of contests, The Iowa Jazz Championship, was held in April. "These are like the 'play-offs' for jazz bands," said Wolfe. The championship ended the 1990-91 year for jazz band. ■

This year's orchestra has a real good rapport. It's a joy for me to have this group because they work hard. It's an excellent class," said James Brauninger, the orchestra director.

In the fall, the orchestra participated in All City Orchestra. They joined with orchestras from North, Hoover, East, and Lincoln to perform in three middle schools. Then in May the String Orchestra and Symphonic Orchestra competed in the State Large Group.

The orchestra also had the chance to go on a trip together that month. They went to St. Louis, where they heard the St. Louis Symphony perform and enjoyed the weekend. ■

RIDER SPORTS

Some people think that school pride only comes with a winning football team but better doesn't always mean best. Just because Dowling has beat us for the past three consecutive years doesn't mean Roosevelt is a lousy school. Remember, in boys' basketball they only beat us by one point in double overtime this year.

Don't focus on the negative. This year the varsity girls' volleyball team where metro champions. The boys' varsity golf team competed at the State tournament. Roosevelt's boys' and girls' swim teams continually send swimmers to State and the tennis team is always competitive.

"So if you want to win in football you better be a Maroon or a Tiger.

But if you want to be the best just stay a Roosevelt Roughrider" (Doug Hirsch). ■

Cheerleaders

Cheerleaders give TRHS spirit

The 1990-91 Rider cheerleaders contributed greatly to Roosevelt's spirit this year. The cheerleaders' season began in late July when they attended a cheerleading camp in Ames. Over two hundred and fifty squads attended the camp. The TRHS cheerleaders were awarded the spirit-stick once during the camp and again at the end of the camp. The varsity football squad was a Squad of Excellence Nominee. All TRHS squads received at least one blue ribbon.

Innovations this season included the addition of male yell leaders to the varsity football squad. They helped tremendously with crowd participation at pep assemblies and games. With the help of last year's seniors and student council's Odin, the "war god," was resurrected from the archives of TRHS.

This year's varsity squads comprised of football, captained by Marla Lang; basketball, captained by Tracy Woods; wrestling, captained by Liz Johnston; dance squad, captained by Marya Templer.

An unprecedented number of freshmen tried-out for cheerleading this year, and if this trend continues, the future of TRHS cheerleading and Rider Pride looks bright.

The cheerleaders are grateful to the Riders Club for their financial contributions which made the purchase of new skirts for all varsity cheerleaders possible. ■

HOPEFUL TEAM DISAPPOINTED BY LOSING SEASON.

The 1990 Roosevelt Roughriders varsity football team started the season with great potential. "We had a group of seventeen seniors and many returning juniors," head coach Tom O'Boyle said, "our weakness came in numbers." The team started the season with only thirty-nine players and soon lost eight to injury.

"When you take eight players out, who can't play at all, it forces a lot of guys to play two ways. They're on the field the whole game and they get tired, our record reflects this," he added.

After losing the first two games of the season, the Riders brought home their first victory, beating East 34-6. The Riders ended the game with 395 yards rushing, to the Scarlets 280, and 62 yards passing opposed to their 44. Unfortunately, the feeling of triumph was short lived.

Following their victory the Riders suffered a crippling loss to Dowling and were then upset by Lincoln and Hoover. "Things happen and you have to bounce back from adversity," O'Boyle said. And bounce back they did. Seven weeks into the season the Riders brought home what was to be their final victory. This time it was the Polar Bears who fell to defeat.

On a bad snap, offensive tackle Tim Graber punted the ball, which was blocked eight yards later. Fortunately, the ball fell into the hands of an alert Jay Williams who ran for 29 yards and the first down. This set up the winning touchdown for the Riders, who later ended the game with a 20 to 12 victory.

"We knew we were going to be small but never dreamed we'd be anywhere near 28 players."

- Tom O'Boyle

The Riders then lost to Valley and Ames, which ended their season with a two and seven record.

Looking back Coach O'Boyle said, "the season was disappointing as a result of the win-loss record, which was a result of numbers and injuries. They were a great bunch of kids to work with and did everything in their power to have a better record, we just didn't come out on the winning end." ■

This years girls' swimming and diving team started the year with fifty-four members, yet there were only four seniors in the bunch. "Anytime you don't have strong senior leadership you're missing something," Coach Tom Reed said, "but we were much better at the end of the year than we were in the beginning."

"When you're young you don't have experience and everything must be learned," Coach Reed said, "not only do you have to learn to swim and compete, but you also have to learn how to practice. Plus, when you're dealing with mostly freshman and sophomores, you aren't sure what their best strokes are and so the first half of the season is experimental, and you're trying to figure out who swims what. You spend the early meets putting them where you think they're gonna be, and then by the final meets when you've got it figured out the season is over. But, you can't tell if someone is a distance swimmer until they swim the distance," Coach Reed said.

Despite their inexperience the team lost only four meets, placed fourth at districts and went on to finish the season thirtieth in the state.

The season also produced four All-Conference athletes. Sophomores Erin Daniels, Anjea White, Megan Daniels and junior Julie Lewis were the 200 medley relay contenders. ■

Freshmen Football

The freshmen gain experience

The 1990 Freshmen football team played-out a difficult season with two wins and five losses.

Freshman Scott Thomas said about the season "that it was just our first year together and we didn't know what to expect."

Co-coach Gary Bowman said, "I think it was a fast season with a lot of ups and downs, but I'm proud they stuck in there and finished the season."

Freshman Luke Hines said that the team has "good potential" for next season and Thomas said "we will be much better next season."

Even though the season ended with a disappointing record the team gained valuable experience. "It was a good experience and a lot of hard work but I think everybody enjoyed it," said Myles Curnes.

Sophomore Football

The team shows physical & mental development

The 1990 Sophomore Boys' Football team enjoyed four wins and lamented 5 losses this season. They triumphed over Hoover, North, East and Newton.

Coach Nickerson said that the team "improved from the freshmen level" through hard work, physical maturity and mental maturity.

Sophomore Jamie Williams said that "working together as a team and sticking together" are the secrets to the team's victories. As to the sophomores' potential for their varsity years, Williams is optimistic.

"Coach Nickerson said the team "showed potential" and could continue developing their potential by working on the physical and mental aspects of the game.

Cross Country

Talented team improves on past records

This year's cross country team had a make it or break it season. The talent and potential was there, but the outcome of any meet was not guaranteed. The boys and girls varsity teams had aspirations of qualifing for the state meet.

The boys' varsity team competed with Dowling all season for the fourth slot in the state meet. At the District qualifying meet our varsity boys lost by one point to Dowling.

The girls' varsity team had more success. Although they did not qualify for the state meet as a team, two individuals made it. Junior Laura Little and freshman Shannon Wilson represented TRHS at the state meet.

Overall the Cross Country team had a successful season in comparison to the past. The added talent of the freshmen and commitment of the upperclassmen will make for a winning season next year.

This year's volleyball team started the season determined to go far. With seven returning seniors, the team was strong in experience and spirit. The team capitalized on their potential to win the Metro when they defeated Ames at Ames. Senior Laura Ohde said, "Beating Ames was a goal set by most of the team. Once that was achieved it gave us confidence and we felt we could beat any team."

The girls did go on to beat other Metro teams such as Valley, Lincoln, East, and North. Ohde also said, "Any team could win on a given night. The Metro was competitive and you had to be mentally prepared for every game." The Riders finished 1st in the Metro and went on to defeat Ames again to become District Champs. The team ended the season as Regional Runner-Ups after a disappointing lost to Cedar Falls. All six starters received All-Metro Honors. Senior Britney Milligan received 1st team by a unanimous vote. Senior Wendy Asklof also received 1st team. Senior Katie Fanter was 2nd team selection and Jessica Thornton, Jenni Rankin, and Laura Ohde received Honorable Mention. Senior Jenni Rankin said, "The best season I've ever played-not necessarily stat wise, but as a team. The seniors as a whole were into having a good season and got the juniors into it as well. We pulled together when we realized what the team could do." ■

BOYS VARSITY BASKETBALL

BOYS HAVE IMPROVED YEAR; DISPLAY BETTER TEAMWORK

The 1990-1 Roosevelt Varsity Boys' Basketball Team won 6 of their 14 conference games. The players and the coach agree that it was a great season,finishing with a 10-10 record overall.

"They showed a lot of improvement this year in their attitudes and the seniors' leadership was outstanding," said Coach Brian Larson. All twelve teammates agreed the most improvement was in the area of teamwork. "Last year it was more of a 'do your own thing' kind of team," said senior Bubba Patton. Senior Ishmael Hart added that "our relationship with the coach is different this year - there's more respect - we do what he says."

The players also agree that this year's practices were more intensive than last season's practices. "They [coaches] pressed us harder and made us work more, but it was worth it," said senior Ben Shreck.

Although a 6-8 record is far from perfect, the team is extremely pleased with the way they played and Coach Larson is optimistic about next year's team. ■

VARSITY GIRLS BASKETBALL

ILLNESS AND INJURY, AMONG OTHER THINGS, CREATE HAVOC FOR A STRUGGLING TEAM

Physically this year's varsity girls basketball season was the worst in quite some time. The team suffered many injuries throughout the year. Junior Amy Mann and seniors Jessica Thornton and Kris Goodman were the only players not injured.

How could a team suffer so many injuries? Possibly their playing style. "We were aggressive and intimidating," senior Kris Goodman said, "and because we weren't very good shooters, we had to become better defensive players in order to protect the ball. At times we were out of control, but it seemed to work in our favor because the other teams weren't used to it."

Injuries weren't the teams only problem, however. Junior Amanda Struse said, "In the beginning coach didn't know what to do with us because there wasn't one superstar." "We lacked consistency, the starters were never the same," senior Jessica Thornton added. Plus, "It was hard for us to play as a team," Goodman said, "the three seniors had played together and the juniors had played together, yet both groups had never played together as a whole. It took us a while to know what to expect from each other."

All three do agree that the end of the season was the best. Thornton said, "At the end of the season when the nine players left came together, we began to play as a team." It was this togetherness and a desire to win that made the last game of the year for them the most exciting.

Regular season conference play had left the team with a disappointing 5-12 record. For their first district game the Riders played the East Scarlets. East was favored to win, but the Roughriders had "upset" on their mind. When it came down to the final minute, the score differed by only two points.

"We were down by two, so we had to start fouling to get the ball back and try for some more points," Thornton said, "but it just so happened that they were the best free-throw shooting team in the state and when we got down by so many, we couldn't come back in the time we had left."

The Riders lost to the Scarlets 56-46. Afterwards Goodman said, "Even though the game and season were both so stressful, it was good to end the season knowing we had played our best!" ■

The 1990/91 sophomore boys' basketball team had a very successful season. The team ended the season with a 17-1 record and first place in the Metro Conference. What was their secret for success? "I think praying before every game made our team very strong. I believe a family that prays together, stays together. We prayed as a team and we stuck together," said sophomore Warren Rogers. "As a team we played great, because we understood each other. We were also very strong on defense and our offense power was incredible," said sophomore Jason Allen.

Unfortunately, the sophomore girls were not nearly as successful, but they worked hard and played with team effort. Practice, was one thing that the sophomore girls did do a lot of. Allisa Degan said, "Practice was hard, but it was needed. Everyone needed to get used to how each teammate works. Once that was accomplished we played like a team, with lots of team effort. "Coach Kate Galligan said, "From the beginning of the season to the end, I saw great improvement." ■

Freshman Basketball

Freshman teams gain the necessary "first year" learning experience

As with every sport, the first year of high school basketball is a total learnig experience.

The freshmen boys' team spent most of their season "trying to get used to playing together. Other schools such as Valley have junior high programs and start early but we don't, so this was the first year we had a chance to get to know each other and play together," player Scott Thomas said.

The freshman girl's were in the same situation. They hadn't been given the advantage of playing together either and also spent most of the season getting to know each other as well. Coach Mike Anderson said, "They were very hard workers and showed a lot of heart on the court."

Both Thomas and Anderson do agree that each team improved throughout the season and show potential for next year's season. Although the records of this year's freshmen teams fell short on paper, the teams were not failures. They worked hard to learn the valuable fundamentals needed for a successful future.

WRESTLING

INJURY AND ILLNESS CREATE HARD TIMES FOR A STRUGGLING VARSITY TEAM WHILE J.V. EXCELS

Injuries hit this year's varsity wrestling team hard. From broken hands and wrists, strep throat and bronchitis to a dislocated shoulder, the team found it hard to build a strong, sound team.

When the season ended, Riders with were left with a 3-11 record. While they were looking forward to districts, the Riders were disappointed when no one advanced to state. However, five wrestlers did place. Senior Don Shumate placed third, juniors Aaron Hyman, Mike Gibb and sophomore Tom Bannister placed fourth. Junior Ryan Williamson and Andrew Swift placed fifth. Overall, the team ended its season in seventh place. Coach Mike Nickerson summed the season up in one word,"Frustrating, the frustration was from a combination of youth, illness, and injuries."

The junior varsity team was going strong this year and ended their season with a first place victory in the Junior Varsity City Championship. The team was comprised of mostly first year wrestlers, "best freshman class I've seen in my years as a coach," Nickerson said. Sophomores Chad Crandell, Julian Hayter, Joel Knaack, John Morgan, and freshmen Dustin Johnson all placed first in their respective weight classes. Sophomores Joe Grace and Matt Pardekooper, freshman John Borgen, Luke Hines and Jeremy Sellen placed second. Third place winners were sophomores Justin Berkley and freshman Elliott Florer.

Nickerson said, "With the youth we had this year, it should be a stronger team next year. The talent returning combined with hard work will give the team the strength it needs." ■

BOYS SWIMMING

THE TEAM PLACES 8TH AT STATE

The 1990-1 boys' swimming and diving team experienced a successful season with only a few losses.

The diving team had a good season with returning seniors Jed Rebelsky and Carlos Rodriguez and sophomore Josh Rosebrook.

The swimming and diving team sent seven of its members to the State meet who returned with the rank of eighth in the State. Junior Jason Klein said regarding the season "we worked hard, had a lot of good guys on the teams - it was a real fun season."

Coach Tom Reed said "I thought the most rewarding thing we did this year was swim our best meet at the State meet and beat 3 of the 4 teams" that we had lost to at previous meets.

The team had much enthusiasm and competition but in the final analysis the team performed up to expectations and had a good time doing it. ■ - Nick Nyman

GIRLS GOLF

Girls go to State for the first time in over 10 years

This year's 1991 Girls Golf team started out slow due to the changing weather of Iowa. The first meet which was the Valley Classic, the team placed seventh. " My girls weren't ready to play in that cold of weather," Head Coach Sy Forrester said.

Although they started out slow they had an outstanding outcome. Freshmen Shannon Reynolds and sophomore Susan Bliss made first All Conference team. Senior captain Laura Ohde made second team, and senior Laura Hewitt received Honorable Mention. This year's total academic gradepoint was a 3.5. By the end of the season the team had begun to pull together first by winning the Conference Championship then moving on to win the Regional, and then excelling to win Districts.■

Team makes State for first time in over 10 years, finishes 9th

The 1990 Boys' Golf season was very successful. The team took second in the Metro Conference, behind Dowling and over Valley. The team also went to the State Tournament for the first time in over ten years.

The team went to the State Tournament in Iowa City and finished ninth in the state. The state players included juniors Hale Hoak, John Sweeney, Mike Spoerl and seniors David Hassel, Brian Houk and Eric Seitz.

Coach Sy Forrester said that the good season was due to the hard work and off-season practice of the golfers. By doing those deeds "each golfer improved four or five strokes a round." As to next year, Coach Forrester thinks the team will be good; however, two of the top twelve players will graduate. Forrester said that Brian Houk and Eric Seitz will be "hard to replace," but there are freshmen who can do the job.■

TRACK & FIELD

Boys qualify for State; Girls finish 2nd at State

Becoming closer with every footstep, the finish line loomed ahead; the runners pushed themselves to reach the awaiting goal that they had trained for each day. This goal was reached by the 1991 girls and boys track and field teams.

There were numerous qualifiers for the state competition from both the girls and boys track teams. Coach Tom O'Boyle said "More people qualified for State this year than in any other year since 1986."

The coaching staff deserves some credit for the outstanding success of the year's teams. They kept the atheletes performing at their best. "They are there for us when needed, if it was not for them to push us we would have not have had such a great season," said Sophomore Marquetta Slater.

The sophomore boys had an exciting season, winning the sophomore Metro Conference and the tenth grade Valley relays. Many of the sophomore boys felt that running track this year was a wonderful experience. Sophomore Matt Jeter said,"The majority of the varsity runners are tenth graders, therefore, the years ahead will be more enjoyable."

1st 800m Run - Matthews 12.62
1st 4x400 - Little, Slater, Carson, Matthews 3:55.36

Senior and foreign exchange student Tomo Taue said "I love track! I was bored, so I decided to go out. Also to participate in track helps to make a friend." Track takes a lot of hard work and devotion but it also definitely has its rewarding aspects.■

BOYS TENNIS

TALENTED TEAM STARTS SLOW BUT LATER GETS DOWN TO BUSINESS, PLACING FIRST AT DISTRICTS AND MOVING ON TO STATE

Although this year's boys' tennis team has suffered from a few disappointing losses, they have also had many incredible victories. "By the end of the season the team started playing like a team," junior Kit Brown said, "We finished the season with a strong one-two punch!"

Freshman Mike Ericson said, "we've done pretty well because we're a pretty deep team, but we've had a few injuries that have hindered us." Another hindering factor that should not go without mention, was the decision made by Dowling's coach to pull junior Mike Reilly off of the court after two warnings. This action coincidentally decided the game in Dowling's favor. A decision in which Coach Debbie Stetson had no comment.

Yet, despite a few troubles, the highlight of the season was placing first at Districts and placing at the state meet. Ericson said, "we had just as good a shot as anyone, there were a lot of good teams out there and we just played the best we could." ■

GIRLS TENNIS

DESPITE LOSS OF IMPORTANT PLAYER, STRONG TEAM FINISHES FIRST AT DISTRICTS

One of the weak points of this year's girls' tennis team was the absence of a very important player. "We have suffered from the loss of our top player Anna Tsui. She played first all four years she was with the team, and is missed this year not only for her wins, but also her team spirit," junior Sandy Susanin said. Yet the team hasn't suffered too much, their record this year is 7 and 3 in regular conference play, while placing first at districts.

Senior Katie Fanter said one of the strong points of the team is the top doubles team, juniors Missy McCollum and Sandy Susanin. "I think the reason they play so well together is because they are friends as well as teammates," she added.

The girls will experience their final test of strength at the state meet on June sixth. "We are really psyched for state. However, you never know who will pop up June sixth and surprise everyone. Hopefully we can surprise the top teams and win a few rounds," junior Missy McCollum said.

Senior Jessica Thornton said, "We've had a couple of disappointing losses, but we are looking forward to doing well at state." ■

With six returning starters as well as six other returning players, this year's baseball team is full of talent and experience. "We are looking to do a lot better than last year," this season's new coach Pat Yacinich said.

Last year the team finished the season with a disappointing 5 wins and 18 losses. "It was a very frustrating year," senior Tom Gardner said. "We knew our pitching staff wasn't real deep, and we couldn't get our bats going in order to stay in the game."

This season however, "our batting order looks good throughout and everyone is psyched up to play," Gardner said. "We're going to rely on hitting the ball on the ground and using our speed to get to base," Yacinich said. "We're a team with lots of speed."

The team's first real test of strength will be at the Urbandale Invitational where the team will face, what they believe to be their toughest competition Ames and Dowling.■

Editor's Note: At the time of our final deadline the team had played only two games.
They beat St. Mary's-Martindale 13-3, but lost to Urbandale 2-9.

SOFTBALL

YOUNG AND INEXPERIENCED TEAM WILL FACE SOME VERY TOUGH COMPETITION.

This year's softball team has lost a handful of experience and talent. Key players Michelle Chiles, Jenny Frueh, Suzy Plettner, Lesley Plettner, Kirsten Gilb and Francis Hatfield all graduated last year. The only returning talent the team will have is juniors Lisa Frueh, Sue Good, Alison Wright and Kemmie Hebensperger. Another possibility for experience will come from Senior Krista Perry, who is out with an illness. "We're hopeful, but right now it's out of our hands," Coach Paul Birocci said."We're waiting to see what the doctor says!"

Last year the girls finished the season strong with a 15 and 10 record, as for this year? "I think we can finish in the upper division of the conference, it will be a challenge but I think we can do it," Birocci said. "We'll have to play a great defense and hopefully that will hold us in games until we get the bats going."■

Team shows good prospects for 1991

An extraordinary thing happened in the first week of May, 1991. A group of Roosevelt's finest athletes assembled for a common goal. The TRHS soccer team started the season ranked first in the Metro, placed second in a tournament and did very well in the conference play. Many of the players agreed they were working harder and it was paying off. "It's a lot of fun," said junior Jesse McKelvey.

The coaching is basically the same this year with a few exceptions. The coaches believe that the team has a lot of potential and will go very far. The team has already won or tied the first three of four games.■

Operation Desert Storm

On August 2,1990 Iraqi President Saddam Hussein made good his threats and invaded the tiny Middle Eastern country of Kuwait. What followed was Operation Desert Shield, an effort of the United Nations to expel the aggressor. Upon Hussein's failure to withdraw by the January 15 deadline set by the U.N., Operation Desert Storm went into effect.

Week 1 January 16-22

Allied forces began the blitz of Iraq at 3 a.m. Persian Gulf time, launching a Tomahawk missile toward Baghdad.This marked the beginning of a relentless air raid intended to destroy Iraqi missiles, radar, aircraft and weapons. This assault by the Allies demonstrated the high-tech capacity of our aerial weaponry as U.S. aircraft successfully blocked Iraqi radar and with night vision devices launched pinpoint low altitude missles under the cover of darkness. Hussein retaliated by firing eight Scud missles at Israel. These did not contain nerve gas, as feared, and the U. S. rushed in Patriot antimissile missiles by the weekend.

Week 2 January 23-27

This proved to be the week of terror. Scud missile attacks persisted in Israel, one landing in a Tel Aviv residential area and injuring 100 people. Hussein was suspected of ecological terrorism as well, when a Kuwaiti supertanker terminal was sabotaged. Hundreds of thousands of barrels of oil were dumped into the Gulf. The Allied Prisoners of War were numbered at 13 and were paraded in front of Iraqi television cameras. U.S. air raids continued with strategy and precision.

Week 3 January 30-February 5

The focus of Operation Desert Storm shifted from an exclusive air battle to include the first ground confrontation. In the deserted town of Khafji a 36-hour battle ensued and proved to be fierce with Allied troops engaged in house-to-house fighting. Hundreds of Iraqi soldiers were taken prisoner and hundreds more were killed. Specialist 4 Melissa Rathbun-Nealy became the first female P.O.W.

Week 4 February 6-12

Bomb damage assessment was attempted by the U.S. in an effort to determine Hussein's remaining power. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Joint Chiefs Chairman Colin Powell flew to Saudi Arabia to confer with Allied commanders. The information was relayed to President Bush, who deliberated on the possible timing of the ground assault.

Week 5 February 13-19

With the bombing of a bunker in Baghdad, the antiseptic appearance of the Gulf crisis showed a more bloody aspect. Politically, Hussein made an unrealistic offer to withdraw from Kuwait, but refused to abide by the U.N.'s resolutions. The offer was dismissed by the President as a "cruel hoax" and the air war continued.

Week 6 February 20-26

The Soviet Union attempted to position itself as mediator to establish a gradual peace. President Bush rejected this proposal and issued his own ultimatum: Saddam Hussein had until noon the next day to begin withdrawing from Kuwait. Hussein's only response was to launch a Scud attack on Isreal shortly before noon. Ten hours later the President ordered the military to use "all forces available including ground forces to eject the Iraqi army from Kuwait." His objective was accomplished two days later; Kuwait was liberated on February 27,1990. ■

Crosby, Stills & Nash

On June 30, 1990 Crosby, Stills & Nash performed a concert from their recent Live It Up album. The return of David Crosby after battling drug addiction was noticed and appreciated by the crowd. The audience was made up mostly of older fans who tended to be more laid back than suited the TRHS students who attended. Despite many complaints, the students enjoyed themselves, dancing throughout the concert. The songs that seemed to be the favorites of the evening were "Wooden Ships" and "Live It Up." The performance was rated as one of the best concerts to come to Iowa this year and will be remembered by all who went.

Paul Simon

Music from Paul Simon's Graceland and Rhythm of the Saints albums filled the air on February 21 and 22, 1991. The drums were incredible, and the other instruments native to South Africa and Brazil were very powerful and made the music unique. Simon's singing was energetic, and he often acknowledged the crowd throughout the concert, particularly a section of seats that was filled with teenagers, quite a few from TRHS. The students enjoyed themselves completely as they danced and sang. The audience, as well as the band, contributed to making the night a success.

Live...in

Paul McCartney

Paul McCartney performed a spectacular concert at the Iowa State Arena on July 18, 1990. The stage show was impressive and included scores of lights, fireworks and a piano that rose above the stage. The concert began with a slide show summarizing the Beatles in the 1960s, 70s and 80s. McCartney performed many hits from his years with the Beatles as well as his own. "Live and Let Die" was one of the highlights, with flames leaping out of the stage to emphasize the meaning and music of the song. The concert was a great crowd pleaser; the only disappointment was that it didn't last longer.

- Eric Seitz

Billy Joel

Billy Joel performed at Hilton Coliseum on December 1 & 2,1990. As part of the Storm Front Tour, recent hits such as "We Didn't Start the Fire", "That's Not Her Style", and "Downeaster Alexa" began the show. Included in the concert were songs from Joel's previous albums. The performer himself was outgoing throughout the evening, making jokes and talking with the audience between numbers. The finale consisted of Joel's famous hit, "Piano Man", which brought the audience to its feet. "The band played really well and Billy was awesome! " said senior Jenni Rankin.

STUDENT BODY

Any way the classes of TRHS are split, the end result is a diverse student body. If each class at Roosevelt represented a string, the ends would be tied to the school as a whole, but would split because of their stereotypical differences.

The freshmen class typically differs most from the rest of the classes. High school is a new scene. There's a lot to be learned, and if they're not careful, they can become victims of their naivete. Freshmen are the little people on the bottom step of the ladder and spend the next three years working their way to the top.

The sophomores split from the freshmen because they can drive. There really isn't much more to be said about sophomore year of high school. Sophomores are too old to walk with the freshmen, but most are too young to run with the juniors and seniors.

Juniors differ from a freshmen because they no longer worry about leaving the library during study hall and going to Mr. Donut. Juniors differ from sophomores because they don't drive just to drive around without a destination. Responsibility for things happening at Roosevelt also separates juniors from the sophomores. They are no longer just spectators.

Split Ends, it's an accurate description of Roosevelt's student body. ■

Freshmen....

Victims of dull, tasteless elevator pass and swimming pool jokes, the freshman class took these upper-class pranks with dignity. Marching to a beat of a different drum, these troopers expressed their enthusiatic participation in pep rallies and club activities.

"Where do these creatures called 'frosh' hide-out on weekends?" wondered the upperclassmen. The freshmen could be found lurking in the dark shadows of the latest movie, sitting around with a bunch of friends watching "Miami Vice", or showing their school spirit at football and basketball games. The freshmen found some form of entertainment to fill their weekend nights.

The freshmen this year came into Roosevelt as different people, wanting new friends, different teachers who would provide better opportunities, more exciting clubs and challenging sports. But the one thing they were truly looking for was off-campus lunch, which they would not have due to the administration's belief that (freshmen) were not capable of handling it. Many freshmen thought it was cruel and unfair. Some also agreed that the act was segregation of a school that should be one whole.

Freshmen have found out that high school has proved to them that adolescence is not only a time for emotion and laughter, but also a time for serious thoughts and exploration. They have come to realize that only by searching and attempting to know themselves and develop their talents, experience will help aid them in becoming mature, responsible adults. ■

Generally, sophomore year is looked at as nothing special. It is a year of "waiting in limbo." The new experiences of freshman year are left behind, and it's time to make the long trek into your high school career. But these myths are simply not true.

Although the excitement of entering high school is gone and you are not quite able to exhibit your leadership abilities, sophomore year is associated with receiving the "keys to freedom." This is the first year that your parents won't know exactly where you are at all times. This is the first year that you can go somewhere besides Taco John's and Quick Trip for lunch. This is the first year that you can drive without the glaring eyes of your parents or the critical glances of your drivers' education instructor. This is the year you receive your license.

It's hard to distinguish between the sophomore classes of each year, and this year's class was no exception. Although there are a few individuals who displayed leadership, sophomores are usually lumped into one giant mass of 15 and 16 year olds pulsating with overactive hormones.

It's not always bad to be thought of as a group, as opposed to individually, for when you leave Roosevelt after two more years, your class will be remembered for what you accomplished in the time that you were here.

Just imagine what you would have missed, if you would have simply skipped this past year. So, if you felt that this year - your sophomore year was nothing special, think again. ■

Your last chance at a real high school education before the constant party and consistent barrage of college applications that is known as your senior year. The first symptoms of senioritis set in and worsen as you realize that there is yet another year to endure. But a sudden sense of superiority takes over as you also realize that year is the year you rule all as the ultimate upper classman.

You are getting more involved in school activities with more responsibilities, and with these new found responsibilities you are trying to prove to your parents, a college, and to yourself that you have much brain power and confidence as you experience your toughest academic year ever. You are taking a last stab at maturity and adulthood before you degenerate into the animalistic senior that just can't wait to graduate. The future also begins to peek over the horizon when the sudden impact of how ridiculous the school system really is hits you, but you still look forward to your senior year and the fact that hundreds of freshmen and sophomores will look up to your great leadership in school and at parties.

Going, going, gone... Before there is time to realize that time is going fast it will be gone. Seniors are anxious to graduate, but when the time comes to "split", they might be wishing they could stay just a little bit longer.

Senior year starts rolling quickly in August with the beginning of school; energy is abundant. There are a million committees to form, club officer positions to be filled, and traditions to plan. The goal is to make this year better than the year before and have a perfect senior year. Although at times the energy level is lethargic and the days meander along, the year overall goes by in a flash.

Highlights of every senior's last year of high school are Powder Puff, Senior Mixer, Surf Day, Prom, Graduation, acceptance to college, etc... The list goes on and on.

Make the most of senior year. Enjoy it as it comes because it will be gone, and once the year is over, high school is over and you can't go back.■

THE PAPER CHASE

I was taking a test, was on problem three,
When there befell a wond'rous tragedy.
I was coloring in the box marked "A"
When my thumb slipped and my pencil did stray.
It fell to the desktop, making much clatter.
At first 'twas all right, but then it got badder.
I grabbed and I missed, making the desk shake;
Due to this vibration, the pencil did make
A roll down the desktop, a run for its life,
Causing me great mental anguish and strife.
Now I did panic, I thought I had lost
My glorious pencil that had three cents cost.
As it rolled down, it produced such a sound
That everyone stared who was sitting 'round.
Oh, what embarrassment! Oh, could it be
That my favorite pencil did not like me?
Maybe it liked me, but just could not stand
To spend its whole life in my sweaty hand.
Nevertheless, it continued to roll,
This devilish pencil tormented my soul.
I lunged out to catch it, but missed it once more.
Now it was falling quickly towards the floor.
A horrible thought now appeared in my head:
What if, on landing, it should break its lead? '
My problems would then be multiplied by two,
I'd then have to catch it and sharpen it, too.
I then figured out in the back of my mind
That I'd be one minute, five seconds behind!
All other students were now on part D.
But I was on part A, still on number three.
How could I make up for all this lost time?
What word could I use to make this line sound right?
I realized the pencil must not hit the floor,
It must be stopped now, must continue no more.
The pencil was still hurtling through the air,
I reached down to grab it and fell off my chair.
The floor rushed up at me and caused me much pain.
By now, to my classmates, I seemed quite insane.
But as everyone stared, muttered, and giggled,
That mean old pencil out of my reach wriggled.
I rose to my knees and started to crawl,
Trapping my pencil between me and the wall.
Then finally I grabbed it, I had it, in fact,
My belov'd pencil's lead was still intact.
We went back to our desk, my pencil and I,
Determined to finish the test, at least try.
But as I sat down, I let out a cough
And, riding the breeze my paper blew off.■

CLASS OF '91

Senior Mixer I

To begin the night seniors gathered together to enjoy more than just their first senior mixer, it was their first chance to be together as the class of 1991. The group of Roosevelt seniors headed to the small gym to be wild and crazy to songs such as "Lola" and "La Grange." The sounds were laid down by DeCuir Light & Audio, caricatures were drawn, and Rho Phi Rho and E Si Phi danced around the gym. Vice Principal Richard Vignaroli and a Des Moines Police officer sat outside the gym, giving strange looks and observing the number of trips to the bathrooms. In the end Roosevelt seniors became face to face with the beginning of their senior year. ■

SENIOR MIXER II

Exotic Erotic is the only description for this year's senior class and was the theme of Senior Mixer II. The seniors filled the small gym, eager to dance to the sound of Decuir Light and Audio. The seniors slipped and slided across the punch-covered floor ending up on their backs more than their feet. Despite the rumors of contaminated punch, the night was a success. Seniors joined in the fun by dancing to songs few can remember. Vice Principal Charlene Hendryx and Hall Monitor Mike Anderson witnessed the exotic class by signing in the seniors as they entered, as well as being curious as to the mental states of the students. As the clock struck eleven, the seniors strolled out of the gym. They were hot, sweaty and sad to see the last mixer come to an end. The seniors began to prepare for the split they were about to take as their senior year comes to an end.■

This senior year was a year for change, and Prom was no exception. The senior class and their dates arrived at the Savery Hotel dressed to kill. "Under A Blue Moon", this year's theme, set the scene for a night of romance.

The music, supplied by DJ Wes Hall from KUCB radio station, was the first DJ for a Roosevelt prom. The variety of music was not increased that much, but all seniors could be spotted "shakin' their thang!"

Something else new and different for Roosevelt was Prom Queen and King. In order to see that everyone had a chance at the crowns, selection was done by lottery. As seniors entered, they were asked to nominate a senior for each crown and were encouraged to nominate themselves. At twelve o'clock Vice Principals Richard Vignaroli and Charlene Hendryx drew the lucky winners, Ryan Devine and Emily Moren.

Included in the changes were the combination of dates. Two couples chose to bring a member of the same sex, a male in a dress and a female in a tux. Another senior decided to escort two dates. All in all, no incidents occurred.

Come morning, the Prom was just a memory. The seniors arrived at home late in the afternoon. All were tired from the nights excitement and disappointed to see the magic come to an end.■

LETS GET FUNKY!! This senior class did it to the full extent. With bell-bottoms on and leisure suits pressed, the seniors began to party on their last morning at Roosevelt.

Besides the funny looking clothes, the entertainment was a mix of "funky" songs. Songs like "YMCA", "Stayin' Alive", "Disco Inferno" and "Groove is in the Heart" were all played to get the seniors in the disco mood. Breakfast was catered by Hy-Vee and served by parents.

Senior Breakfast Co-Chairs Jenni Rankin and Jessica Jones distributed the senior awards. Awards such as Best Body, Most likely to Marry Rich and a new one the Barbie and Ken award were given. Todd Thomas and Marya Templer were the lucky recipients of Ken and Barbie. Lisa Anderson achieved the Most Dizzy award because she thought she could drive to Hawaii, There is a bridge right? Who could be a better recipient of the Biggest Mouth than Nikki Stewart? Other awards are listed on the following page.

After the last award was given seniors proceeded to the auditorium for a long practice of Line of March. When the funk was gone, seniors went home to catch some winks before the big day.■

GRADUATION:

Wet ground and sunny skies greeted this graduating class of 1991. The vision of having commencement on the front lawn was shattered and the ceremony was therefore held in a hot, sticky auditorium.

The traditional processional and welcome were given by the TRHS Concert Band and Dr. Conley, respectively. It's not always easy to hold the attention of an audience of over two thousand, (especially a sweaty audience of over two thousand) but this year's speakers did their best to keep the listeners' interest. Kris Goodman spoke as a representative of the senior class, giving positive impressions of her fellow graduates. An address about life in the public arena was given by TRHS Journalism teacher, Jim Tredway. He stressed the importance of taking risks, and suggested reasons to "stand up and be judged."

In an emotional moment, TRHS alumnus and present member of the Board of Education, Jacquie Easley, addressed the graduating class. Returning to Roosevelt at such a special time, seemed to fill her with special pleasure.

So ends another commencement and so ends another year, leaving the 1991 graduates with the decision to make "the final split." ■

Graduation Party 1991

On May 26, 1991, just six hours after graduation, fireworks exploded over the front lawn, signaling the beginning of a night the class of '91 will never forget. The seniors huddled together to watch the fireworks, and pose for a few pictures before passing from reality through the huge story book that covered the front of the school, and into The Never Ending Story.

Once inside, the seniors found themselves in the midst of Willie Wonka's Chocolate Factory. Then it was off to see The Wizard of Oz before gamblin' and grubbin' on the Mark Twain.

Along the way, a parched voyager could wet his whistle while trying to harmonize with the piano in La Cantina. Seniors could match their skills with one another while playing Nintendo and arcade games in Dungeons and Dragons. A stop in Cartoon Alley included fresh popcorn and cartoons on a large screen T. V. Next, it was time to walk the streets of England while soaking up the ambience of Charles Dickens' Christmas Carol. At the 20, 000 Leagues Under the Sea Deep Six Miniature Golf Course the seniors could let the Jacques Cousteau and Jack Nicklaus in them run wild as they wrestled with the obstacles and curves of the deep sea. A traveler could then duck down through the rabbit hole and find himself transformed into a dwarf upon arriving at Alice in Wonderland.

If touring these sights didn't leave a senior exhausted, he could sweat it out on the basketball, volleyball, and badminton courts or even the Moon Walk in Instant Replay. By passing through a Castle a senior could reach Merlin's Forest and get funky with the music of Three Carpenter, be bedazzled by magician Rick Fry, bust a gut laughing at comedian Toby Kid, or be mesmerized by hypnotist Mark Pittman.

Words can't give an accurate account of the senior party. Only those that were there truly know the magnitude of this extravaganza which was the culmination of four years of high school by the seniors and months of hard work and planning by their parents.

Thanks again to our parents for giving us a chance to be together one last time before starting the next chapter of our Never Ending Story..■

Having you for a daughter has been one of life's greatest gifts... for all you've been,
for all you are, and for all you're yet to be.
You're loved so very much
Love,
Mom, Dad,
& Suzanne

Jennifer Drummond

May the road rise to meet you,
May the sun shine warm upon your face,
May the wind be always at your back.

Congratulations, Kate!
We love you,
Mom, Dad, & Rob

Katie Fanter

Thomas,
GO FOR IT! Follow your dreams and reach for the stars. I'm so proud of you. You'll be missed, but I'm behind you all the way.

Love always,
Mom

Tom Gardner

Kris,
The past 18 years you have given us so many wonderful memories. We couldn't be more proud of your accomplishments. May your life always be filled with happiness and success.

LOVE,
Mom, Dad, Michelle

Kris Goodman

The earth keeps some vibration going there in your heart, and that is you. And if the people find you can fiddle, why, fiddle you must, for all your life. (From "Spoon River Anthology" by Edgar Lee Masters)

We love you,
Mom, Dad, & Matthew

Courtney Hagen

To Tom the Fisherman,
Sometimes you fall in the river and come out with your pants full of fish! Best wishes to you always.

Love,
Mom

Lolly,
Be gentle and kind
Enjoy life
Be tolerant
Keep your sense of humor
Work and play hard
Believe in yourself
Remain generous in love
Call home once a week.
Love you,
Mom & Dad

Matt,
Seems like only yesterday you were into the "Hulk", "Starsky and Hutch" and "Evil Knevel." Time sure goes fast. It's hard to believe you're on your way to college. We'll always be proud of you.
Love,
Mom, Dad, Katie, & Danny

May you always have smiles and happiness

Love,
Mom & Dad

Kyra Ostendorf

Jenni,
"It is in dreaming
the greatest dreams... seeking the highest goals... that we build
the brightest tomorrows."
Thank you for the wonderful memories.
Love, Mom & Dad

Jenni Rankin

You have always loved the water.
We hope the Navy is all you want it to be.

We'll miss you.
Love,

Congratulations, Rob!
We are so proud of you and love you very much!
As always, keep both hands on the wheel in your drive to achieve your dreams.
Love, Mom, Dad, Suzy & Remi

Rob Schneckloth

The challenges just keep on getting bigger. We're behind you always.

Love,
Mom & Kent

Ride on, Ben! Our brave big boy, gliding on your riding toy.
From morning to muster to bedtime stall
You gave us laughter, love, and joy.
Now soccer, ski slopes, basketball, Boundary Waters-- adventures all!
We love you
-Mom & Dad

ABOVE: On April 1, 1991 President George Bush and Vice-president Dan Quayle visited Roosevelt to award the school the prestigious, "Best School in The History Of Schools" award. Quayle ate school lunch while here and gave his speech with a piece of spinach stuck in his teeth. Bush stood off to the side and said, "Atta, boy, Danny" every once in a while. (If you're having trouble remembering their visit, ask yourself whether your'e losing your mind. Also, consider whether all parts of a yearbook come gracefully together on the last day of school.)

Erika-
From baby to little ballerina , to lovely young lady, you have filled our lives with joy and pride. Always retain your faith, spirit and dedication, and never forget our love and respect.
-Mom, Scott, Matt, Adam

Erika Sidney

Jodi S.,
May the sun always be on your back. The wind in your hair The smile on your face And the spring in your walk.
With love,
Mom, Dad, D.J.,
Kami and Samuel

Jodi Soloman

You are beaming from ear-to-ear,
Because you have finished your Senior year,
Through diapers, teething, boyfriends & tears,
We've always been so proud of you, dear,
And, if you ever need us, we'll always be here.
Love, Mom & Dad

Melanie Spalti

Megan-
It has been a treat to be a part of your growing up. I look forward to exploring with you whatever exciting venture you undertake.

Love you,
Mom

Megan Taylor

Jessica-
We are so very proud of you! Congratulations and all our love.

-Mom, Dad & Megan

Jessica Thornton

You were always such a sweetheart. But at a very young age you started talking on the phone.
We love you dearly.

You little doll in diapers.
Pink ribbons, bows and braids.
Where did all those moments go? Where, I do not know.
Therefore, our precious daughter, we wish for you every dream you have, and we'll love you 'till the end. Love Always,
Mom, Dad & Ryan

LET'S SPLIT

The year has come to an end and even though we've encountered many mishaps, the special memories will last throughout our lifetime. It is time that we split from the familiar faces of everyday life, move on to new adventures and pursue our future goals.

For the underclassmen, carefree days at TRHS are sure to come again, but for the Seniors, the class of '91, no matter what is in store for you, no matter where you end up, don't forget the experiences we had here and always remember to follow your dreams. Good luck in the future and have a great life.
